INTRODUCTION

The Foundation Directory Part 2 provides complete descriptive information on the second tier of private and community foundations in the United States: those holding assets from $1 million and less than $2 million or with annual grant programs from $50,000 and less than $200,000. It is designed as a companion volume to The Foundation Directory, which reports on foundations with assets of $2 million or more or annual giving of at least $200,000. Together The Foundation Directory and The Foundation Directory Part 2 constitute the standard reference work for information on the country's largest 16,191 active grantmaking foundations. (For brief data on foundations with assets below $1 million and giving less than $50,000 annually, users should consult the Foundation Center's Guide to U.S. Foundations, Their Trustees, Officers, and Donors.) The Foundation Directory Part 2 can also stand alone as a guide to smaller but significant grantmakers whose charitable giving often supports local organizations.

THE 1999 EDITION

The 1999 Edition is the eighth complete revision of The Foundation Directory Part 2. This edition contains entries for 5,745 mid-sized foundations meeting the financial criteria of assets from $1 million and less than $2 million or annual giving from $50,000 and less than $200,000. Together they held combined assets of nearly $5.7 billion and awarded more than $449 million in disbursements (Table 1). The majority of the entries (over 93 percent) contain geographic limitation statements showing preferences for giving within specific cities or states.

SELECTED GRANTS

To illustrate a foundation's giving pattern, selected grants to recipient organizations have been provided whenever possible. Up to ten selected grants have been included for foundations with annual giving of at least $50,000. Grants to individuals are not listed. Of the 5,745 entries in this volume, 2,051 (35.7 percent) include lists of selected grants. In all, 18,188 grants are included, totaling more than $148 million in support to organizations. These grants may serve to illustrate fields of interest and geographic preferences. In general, however, the selected grants represent large awards and may not reveal the full spectrum of programs and giving interests of a foundation. The complete descriptive entry should always be carefully examined to determine a foundation's current funding emphasis, and, where available, the "average" grant amount noted in the fiscal information section should be consulted to ascertain the typical range of grants awarded.

FOUNDATIONS NEW TO THE EDITION

The 1999 Edition of The Foundation Directory Part 2 includes entries for 2,171 foundations that were not listed in the 1998 Edition. Of these, 1,981 (91.2 percent) are independent foundations, 94 (4.3 percent) are company-sponsored foundations, 9 (less than 1 percent) are community foundations, and 87 (4 percent) are grantmaking operating foundations. The 2,171 newly qualifying foundations held combined assets of nearly $2 billion and contributed more than $152 million in the most recent year of record (Table 2). Foundations new to The Foundation Directory Part 2 can be identified by a star (☆) in their descriptive entries. Users with a particular interest in these newly qualifying foundations will find them listed separately in the Index of Foundations New to the Edition.

WHAT IS A FOUNDATION?

The Center defines a foundation as a nongovernmental, nonprofit organization with its own funds (usually from a single source, either an individual, family, or corporation) and program managed by its own trustees and directors that was established to maintain or aid educational, social, charitable, religious, or other activities serving the common welfare, primarily by making grants to other nonprofit organizations.

The Foundation Directory Part 2 includes only those organizations meeting the Foundation Center's definition of a private or community foundation and which held assets from $1 million and less than $2 million or gave from $50,000 and less than $200,000 in the latest year of record.

The Foundation Directory Part 2 does not include organizations whose giving is restricted by charter to one or more specified organizations; foundations that function as endowments for special purposes within and under the governance of a parent institution, such as a college or church; operating foundations that do not maintain active grantmaking programs; organizations that act as associations for industrial or other special groups; or organizations that make general appeals to the public for funds.

TYPES OF FOUNDATIONS

Foundations included in this volume fall into one of four categories:

Independent Foundation: A fund or endowment designated by the Internal Revenue Service as a private foundation under the law, the primary function of which is the making of grants. The assets of most independent foundations are derived from the gift of an individual or family. Some function under the direction of family members and are known as "family foundations." Depending on their range of giving, independent foundations may also be known as "general purpose" or "special purpose" foundations.

Company-Sponsored Foundation: A private foundation under the tax code deriving its funds from a profit-making company or corporation but independently constituted, the purpose of which is to make grants, usually on a broad basis although not without regard for the business interests of the corporation. Company-sponsored foundations are legally distinct from contributions programs administered within the corporation directly from corporate funds. Direct corporate giving programs are not listed in The Foundation Directory or The Foundation Directory Part 2. The Foundation Center's National Directory of Corporate Giving, Fifth Edition, published in 1997, includes complete corporate giving profiles on more than 2,500 companies.

Operating Foundation: A fund or endowment designated under the tax code by the Internal Revenue Service as a private operating foundation, the primary purpose of which is to operate research, social welfare, or other programs determined by its governing body or charter. Most operating foundations award few or no

Foundation Type	Description	Source of Funds	Decision-Making Activity	Grantmaking Requirements	Reporting
Independent Foundation	An independent grantmaking organization established to aid social, educational, religious, or other charitable activities.	Endowment generally derived from a single source such as an individual, a family, or a group of individuals. Contributions to endowment limited as to tax deductibility.	Decisions may be made by donor or members of the donor's family; by an independent board of directors or trustees; or by a bank or trust officer acting on the donor's behalf.	Broad discretionary giving allowed but may have specific guidelines and give only in a few specific fields. About 70% limit their giving to local area.	Annual information returns (990-PF) filed with IRS must be made available to public. A small percentage issue separately printed annual reports.
Company-Sponsored Foundation	Legally an independent grantmaking organization with close ties to the corporation providing funds.	Endowment and annual contributions from a profit-making corporation. May maintain small endowment and pay out most of contributions received annually in grants, or may maintain endowment to cover contributions in years when corporate profits are down.	Decisions made by board of directors often composed of corporate officials, but which may include individuals with no corporate affiliation. Decisions may also be made by local company officials.	Giving tends to be in fields related to corporate activities or in communities where corporation operates. Usually give more grants but in smaller dollar amounts than independent foundations.	Same as above.
Operating Foundation	An organization that uses its resources to conduct research or provide a direct service.	Endowment usually provided from a single source, but eligible for maximum deductible contributions from public.	Decisions generally made by independent board of directors.	Makes few, if any grants. Grants generally related directly to the foundation's program.	Same as above.
Community Foundation	A publicly sponsored organization that makes grants for social, educational, religious, or other charitable purposes in a specific community or region.	Contributions received from many donors. Usually eligible for maximum tax deductible contributions from public.	Decisions made by board of directors representing the diversity of the community.	Grants generally limited to charitable organizations in local community.	IRS 990 return available to public. Many publish full guidelines or annual reports.

grants to outside organizations, and therefore do not appear in The Foundation Directory Part 2.

Community Foundation: A publicly supported 501(c)(3) organization that makes grants in a specific community or region. In its general charitable purposes, a community foundation is much like a private foundation; however, its funds are derived from many donors rather than a single source, as is usually the case with private foundations. Further, community foundations are usually classified under the tax code as public charities and are therefore subject to different rules and regulations than those which govern private foundations. Public charities other than community foundations are not included in The Foundation Directory Part 2.

SOURCES OF INFORMATION

The Foundation Directory Part 2 is completely revised and updated annually, using the latest information available from the foundations themselves or from public records. To identify organizations for inclusion in The Foundation Directory Part 2, Foundation Center staff monitor IRS information returns for private foundations (Form 990-PF), journal and newspaper articles, press releases and news services related to foundation activities, and foundation publications such as newsletters and annual reports. Entries are prepared from the most recent information and sent to the individual foundations for verification. In 1998, requests for verification were sent to all 5,745 foundations listed in this volume, and 730 foundations (12.7 percent) responded fully. For the remainder, entries were updated from the most recent IRS information returns available as of November 1998.

The Internet has become an important and effective new research tool, enabling staff to learn more about foundations and their grantmaking activities. This edition contains 15 entries with URL (Internet web site) addresses and an additional 60 that report having an E-mail address.

A breakdown of the 5,745 foundations by fiscal year-end date reveals the following: 57 foundations (0.9 percent) with 1998 fiscal data; 3,780 foundations (65.8 percent) with 1997 fiscal data; 1,452 foundations (25.3 percent) with 1996 fiscal data; and 456 foundations (8 percent) with 1995 fiscal data. Thus, 1997 or 1998 fiscal information is reported for 66.8 percent of the foundations listed. Even when more recent financial data were not available, foundation addresses, contacts, program information, and application procedures reflect the latest updates received by the Center through November 1998.

HOW TO USE THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY PART 2

The Foundation Directory Part 2 is one of the first tools grantseekers should use to identify foundations that might be interested in funding their project or organization. It provides basic descriptions and current fiscal data for the nation's mid-sized foundations—those with assets from $1 million and less than $2 million or annual giving from $50,000 and less than $200,000. In addition, indexes help to identify foundations that may have giving interests in particular subject fields or geographic areas, or that provide specific types of support.

Researchers, journalists, grantmakers, and others interested in the philanthropic field use The Foundation Directory Part 2 in conjunction with The Foundation Directory to get a broad overview of current foundation activities nationally or within a particular geographic region, or to gather facts about one or more specific foundations.

When using The Foundation Directory Part 2 to identify potential funding sources, grantseekers are urged to read each foundation description carefully to determine the nature of the grantmaker's interests and to note any restrictions on giving that would prevent the foundation from considering their proposal. Many foundations limit their giving to a particular subject field or geographic area; others are unable to provide certain types of support, such as funds for buildings and equipment or for general operating budgets. Even when a foundation has not provided an explicit limitations statement, restrictions on giving may exist. This is often the case with entries updated from public records. Further research into the giving patterns of these foundations is necessary before applying for funds. Also, please note that many foundations do not accept applications, or contribute only to pre-selected organizations.

ARRANGEMENT

The Foundation Directory Part 2 is arranged alphabetically by state and, within states, by foundation name. Each descriptive entry is assigned a sequence number, and references in the indexes are to these entry numbers.

WHAT'S IN AN ENTRY?

There are 34 basic data elements that could be included in a Foundation Directory Part 2 entry. The content of entries varies widely due to differences in the size and nature of foundation programs and the availability of information from foundations. Specific data elements that could be included are:

1. The full legal name of the foundation.
2. The former name of the foundation.
3. The street address, city, and zip code of the foundation's principal office.
4. The telephone number of the foundation.
5. The name and title of the contact person of the foundation.
6. Any additional address (such as a separate application address) supplied by the foundation. Additional telephone or FAX numbers as well as E-mail and/or URL addresses also may be listed here.
7. Establishment data, including the legal form (usually a trust or corporation) and the year and state in which the foundation was established.
8. The donor(s) or principal contributor(s) to the foundation, including individuals, families, and corporations. If a donor is deceased, the symbol ‡ follows the name.
9. Foundation type: community, company-sponsored, independent, or operating.
10. The year-end date of the foundation's accounting period for which financial data is supplied.
11. Assets: the total value of the foundation's investments at the end of the accounting period. In a few instances, foundations that act as "pass-throughs" for annual corporate or individual gifts report zero assets.
12. Asset type: generally, assets are reported at market value (M) or ledger value (L).
13. Gifts received: the total amount of new capital received by the foundation in the year of record.
14. Expenditures: total disbursements of the foundation, including overhead expenses (salaries; investment, legal, and other professional fees; interest; rent; etc.) and federal excise taxes, as well as the total amount paid for grants, scholarships, and matching gifts.

15. The total amount of qualifying distributions made by the foundation in the year of record. This figure includes all grants paid, qualifying administrative expenses, loans and program-related investments, set-asides, and amounts paid to acquire assets used directly in carrying out charitable purposes.
16. The dollar value and number of grants paid during the year, with the largest grant paid (high) and smallest grant paid (low). When supplied by the foundation, the average range of grant payments is also indicated. Grant figures do not include commitments for future payment or amounts spent for grants to individuals, employee matching gifts, loans, or foundation-administered programs.
17. The total dollar value of set-asides made by the foundation during the year. Although set-asides count as qualifying distributions toward the foundation's annual payout requirement, they are distinct from any amounts listed as grants paid.
18. The total amount and number of grants made directly to or on behalf of individuals, including scholarships, fellowships, awards, and medical payments. When supplied by the foundation, high, low, and average range are also indicated.
19. The dollar amount and number of employee matching gifts awarded, generally by company-sponsored foundations.
20. The total dollars expended for programs administered by the foundation and the number of foundation-administered programs. These programs can include museums or other institutions supported exclusively by the foundation, research programs administered by the foundation, etc.
21. The dollar amount and number of loans made to nonprofit organizations by the foundation. These can include program-related investments, emergency loans to help nonprofits that are waiting for grants or other income payments, etc. When supplied by the foundation, high, low, and average range are also indicated.
22. The number of loans to individuals and the total amount loaned. When supplied by the foundation, high, low, and average range are also indicated.
23. The monetary value and number of in-kind gifts.
24. The purpose and activities, in general terms, of the foundation. This statement reflects funding interests as expressed by the foundation or, if no foundation statement is available, an analysis of the actual grants awarded by the foundation during the most recent two-year period for which public records exist. Many foundations leave statements of purpose intentionally broad, indicating only the major program areas within which they fund. More specific areas of interest can often be found in the "Fields of Interest" section of the entry.
25. The fields of interest reflected in the foundation's giving program. The terminology used in this section conforms to the Foundation Center's Grants Classification System (GCS). The terms also provide access to foundation entries through the Subject Index at the back of the volume.
26. The international giving interests of the foundation.
27. The types of support (such as endowment funds, building/renovation, equipment, fellowships, etc.) offered by the foundation. Definitions of the terms used to describe the forms of support available are provided at the beginning of the Types of Support Index at the back of this volume.
28. Any stated limitations on the foundation's giving program, including geographic preferences, restrictions by subject focus or type of recipient, or specific types of support the foundation cannot provide. It is noted here if a foundation does not accept unsolicited applications.
29. Publications or other printed materials distributed by the foundation that describe its activities and giving program. These can include annual or multi-year reports, newsletters, corporate giving reports, informational brochures, grant lists, etc. It is also noted if a foundation will send copies of its IRS information return (Form 990-PF) on request.
30. Application information, including the preferred form of application, the number of copies of proposals requested, application deadlines, frequency and dates of board meetings, and the general amount of time the foundation requires to notify applicants of the board's decision. Some foundations have indicated that their funds are currently committed to ongoing projects.
31. The names and titles of officers, principal administrators, trustees, directors, and members of other governing bodies. An asterisk (*) following the individual's name indicates an officer who is also a trustee or director.
32. The number of professional and support staff employed by the foundation, and an indication of part-time or full-time status of these employees, as reported by the foundation.
33. EIN: the Employer Identification Number assigned to the foundation by the Internal Revenue Service for tax purposes. This number can be useful when ordering microfilm or paper copies of the foundation's annual information return, Form 990-PF.

34. A list of selected grants for those foundations with annual giving of at least $50,000. Up to ten grants reported during a given fiscal year may be provided. Grants to individuals are not included.

INDEXES

Seven indexes to the descriptive entries are provided at the back of the book to assist grantseekers and other users of The Foundation Directory Part 2:

1. The Index to Donors, Officers, Trustees is an alphabetical list of individual and corporate donors, officers, and members of governing boards whose names appear in The Foundation Directory Part 2 entries. Many grantseekers find this index helpful in determining whether current or prospective members of their own governing boards, alumni of their schools, or current contributors are affiliated with any foundations.
2. The Geographic Index references foundation entries by the state and city in which the foundation maintains its principal offices. The index includes "see also" references at the end of each state section to indicate foundations that have made substantial grants in that state but are located elsewhere. Foundations that award grants on a national, regional, or international basis are indicated in bold type. The remaining foundations generally limit their giving to the state or city in which they are located.
3. The International Giving Index provides access to foundations whose giving interests extend beyond the United States. A complete alphabetical list of countries, continents, and regions is provided at the beginning of the index. Under each country, continent, or region, entry numbers are listed by the state location and abbreviated name of the foundation. Organizations whose programs benefit foreign countries should use this index to identify funders with similar geographic interests.
4. The Types of Support Index provides access to foundation entries by the specific types of support the foundation awards. A glossary of the forms of support listed appears at the beginning of the index. Under each type of support term, entry numbers are listed by the state location and abbreviated name of the foundation. Foundations that award grants on a national, regional, or international basis are indicated in bold type. When using this index, grantseekers should focus on foundations located in their own state that offer the specific type of support needed, or on foundations listed in bold type if their program has national impact.
5. The Subject Index provides access to the giving interests of foundations based on the "Fields of Interest" sections of their entries. The terminology in the index now conforms to the Foundation Center's Grants Classification System (GCS). A complete alphabetical list of the subject headings in the current edition is provided at the beginning of the index as well as "see also" references to related subject areas included in this volume. Under each subject term, entry numbers are listed by the state location and abbreviated name of the foundation. As in the Types of Support Index, foundations that award grants on a national, regional, or international basis are indicated in bold type. Again, grantseekers should focus on foundations located in their own state that have shown an interest in their subject area, or on foundations listed in bold type if their program is national in scope.
6. The Index of Foundations New to the Edition is a listing of foundations that appear in the current edition of The Foundation Directory Part 2 but had not met criteria for inclusion in the previous edition. The descriptive entries for these foundations are highlighted with a star (☆).
7. The Foundation Name Index is an alphabetical list of all foundations appearing in the 1999 Edition of The Foundation Directory Part 2. Former names of foundations appear with "see" references to the appropriate entry numbers.

RESEARCHING FOUNDATIONS

Foundations receive many thousands of worthy requests each year. Most of these requests are declined simply because there are never enough funds to go around or because the application clearly falls outside the foundation's fields of interest. Sometimes the qualifications of the staff are not well established; the budget or the means of evaluating the project may not be presented convincingly; the organization may not have asked itself whether it is especially suited to make a contribution to the solution of the problem, whether it can provide the service proposed, or whether others are not already effectively engaged in the same activity.

The first step in researching foundation funding support, then, is to analyze your own program and organization to determine the need you plan to address, the audience you will serve, and the amount and type of support you need. Become familiar with the basic facts about foundations in general and how they operate. Consider other sources of funding, such as individual contributors, government grants, earned income possibilities, and so on. Although foundations are an important source of support for nonprofit organizations, their giving represents a relatively small percentage of the total philanthropic dollars contributed annually, and an even smaller percentage of the total when government grants and earned income are included.

Once you have determined the amount and type of support you need and the reasons why you are seeking foundation support, The Foundation Directory Part 2 can help you to develop an initial list of foundations that might be interested in funding your project. In determining whether or not it is appropriate to approach a particular foundation with a grant request, keep in mind the following questions:

1. Has the foundation demonstrated a real commitment to funding in your subject area?
2. Does it seem likely that the foundation will make a grant in your geographic area?
3. Does the amount of money you are requesting fit within the foundation's grant range?
4. Does the foundation have any policy prohibiting grants for the type of support you are requesting?
5. Does the foundation prefer to make grants that cover the full cost of a project or does it favor projects where other foundations or funding sources share the cost?
6. What types of organizations does the foundation tend to support?
7. Does the foundation have specific application deadlines and procedures or does it review proposals continuously?

Some of these questions can be answered from the information provided in The Foundation Directory and The Foundation Directory Part 2, but grantseekers will almost always want to consult a few additional resources before submitting a request for funding. If the foundation issues an annual report, application guidelines, or other printed materials describing its program, it is advisable to obtain copies and study them carefully before preparing your proposal. The foundation's annual information return (Form 990-PF) includes a list of all grants paid by the foundation, as well as basic data about its finances, officers, and giving policies. Copies of these returns are available for free examination at most of the Foundation Center's cooperating libraries.

THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY

The Foundation Directory provides information on the first tier of U.S. grantmaking foundations, those with at least $2 million in assets or at least $200,000 in annual grantmaking. Together The Foundation Directory and The Foundation Directory Part 2 constitute the standard reference work for information on more than 15,700 of the largest active grantmaking foundations in the United States.

THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY SUPPLEMENT

The Foundation Directory Supplement, published six months after The Foundation Directory and The Foundation Directory Part 2, contains entries that have had substantial changes since the publication of those volumes. New information is highlighted in boldface type in the entries.

GLOSSARY

The following list includes important terms used by grantmakers and grantseekers. A number of sources have been consulted in compiling this glossary, including The Handbook on Private Foundations, by David F. Freeman and the Council on Foundations (New York: The Foundation Center, 1991); The Law of Tax-Exempt Organizations, 6th Edition, by Bruce R. Hopkins (New York: John Wiley & Sons, 1992); and the Glossary of Fund-Raising Terms, (Alexandria, Va.: National Society of Fund Raising Executives Institute, 1986).

Annual Report: A voluntary report issued by a foundation or corporation that provides financial data and descriptions of grantmaking activities. Annual reports vary in format from simple typewritten documents listing the year's grants to detailed publications that provide substantial information about the grantmaking program.

Assets: The amount of capital or principal—money, stocks, bonds, real estate, or other resources—controlled by the foundation or corporate giving program. Generally, assets are invested and the income is used to make grants.

Beneficiary: In philanthropic terms, the donee or grantee receiving funds from a foundation or corporate giving program is the beneficiary, although society benefits as well. Foundations whose legal terms of establishment restrict their giving to one or more named beneficiaries are not included in this publication.

Bricks and Mortar: An informal term for grants for buildings or construction projects.

Capital Support: Funds provided for endowment purposes, buildings, construction, or equipment, and including, for example, grants for "bricks and mortar."

Challenge Grant: A grant awarded that will be paid only if the donee organization is able to raise additional funds from another source(s). Challenge grants are often used to stimulate giving from other donors. (See also Matching Grant)

Community Foundation: A 501(c)(3) organization that makes grants for charitable purposes in a specific community or region. Funds are usually derived from many donors and held in an endowment independently administered; income earned by the endowment is then used to make grants. Although a few community foundations may be classified by the IRS as private foundations, most are classified as public charities eligible for maximum income tax-deductible contributions from the general public. (See also 501(c)(3); Public Charity)

Community Fund: An organized community program which makes annual appeals to the general public for funds that are usually not retained in an endowment but are used for the ongoing operational support of local social and health service agencies. (See also Federated Giving Program)

Company-Sponsored Foundation (also referred to as Corporate Foundation): A private foundation whose grant funds are derived primarily from the contributions of a profit-making business organization. The company-sponsored foundation may maintain close ties with the donor company, but it is an independent organization with its own endowment and is subject to the same rules and regulations as other private foundations. (See also Private Foundation)

Cooperative Venture: A joint effort between or among two or more grantmakers (including foundations, corporations, and government agencies). Partners may share in funding responsibilities or contribute information and technical resources.

Corporate Giving Program: A grantmaking program established and administered within a profit-making company. Corporate giving programs do not have a separate endowment and their annual grant totals are generally more directly related to current profits. They are not subject to the same reporting requirements as private foundations. Some companies make charitable contributions through both a corporate giving program and a company-sponsored foundation.

Distribution Committee: The board responsible for making grant decisions. For community foundations, it is intended to be broadly representative of the community served by the foundation.

Donee: The recipient of a grant. (Also known as the grantee or the beneficiary.)

Donor: The individual or organization that makes a grant or contribution. (Also known as the grantor.)

Employee Matching Gift: A contribution to a charitable organization by a company employee that is matched by a similar contribution from the employer. Many corporations have employee matching gift programs in higher education that stimulate their employees to give to the college or university of their choice.

Endowment: Funds intended to be kept permanently and invested to provide income for continued support of an organization.

Expenditure Responsibility: In general, when a private foundation makes a grant to an organization that is not classified by the IRS as a "public charity," the foundation is required by law to provide some assurance that the funds will be used for the intended charitable purposes. Special reports on such grants must be filed with the IRS. Most grantee organizations are public charities and many foundations do not make "expenditure responsibility" grants.

Family Foundation: An independent private foundation whose funds are derived from members of a single family. Family members often serve as officers or board members of the foundation and have a significant role in grantmaking decisions. (See also Operating Foundation; Private Foundation; Public Charity)

Federated Giving Program: A joint fundraising effort usually administered by a nonprofit "umbrella" organization which in turn distributes contributed funds to several nonprofit agencies. United Way and community chests or funds, the United Jewish Appeal and other religious appeals, the United Negro College Fund, and joint arts councils are examples of federated giving programs. (See also Community Fund)

501(c)(3): The section of the Internal Revenue code that defines nonprofit, charitable (as broadly defined), tax-exempt organizations; 501(c)(3) organizations are further defined as public charities, private operating foundations, and private non-operating foundations. (See also Operating Foundation; Private Foundation; Public Charity)

Form 990-PF: The annual information return that all private foundations must submit to the IRS each year and which is also filed with appropriate state officials. The form requires information on the foundation's assets, income, operating expenses, contributions and grants, paid staff and salaries, program funding areas, grantmaking guidelines and restrictions, and grant application procedures. Foundation Center libraries maintain files of 990-PFs for public inspection.

General Purpose Foundation: An independent private foundation that awards grants in many different fields of interest. (See also Special Purpose Foundation)

General Purpose Grant: A grant made to further the general purpose or work of an organization, rather than for a specific purpose or project. (See also Operating Support Grant)

Grantee Financial Report: A report detailing how grant funds were used by an organization. Many corporations require this kind of report from grantees. A financial report generally includes a listing of all expenditures from grant funds as well as an overall organizational financial report covering revenue and expenses, assets and liabilities.

Grassroots Fundraising: Efforts to raise money from individuals or groups from the local community on a broad basis. Usually an organization's own constituents—people who live in the neighborhood served or clients of the agency's services—are the sources of these funds. Grassroots fundraising activities include membership drives, raffles, auctions, benefits, and a range of other activities.

Independent Foundation: A grantmaking organization usually classified by the IRS as a private foundation. Independent foundations may also be known as family foundations, general purpose foundations, special purpose foundations, or private non-operating foundations. The Foundation Center defines independent foundations and company-sponsored foundations separately; however, federal law normally classifies both as private, non-operating foundations subject to the same rules and requirements. (See also Private Foundation)

In-Kind Contributions: Contributions of equipment, supplies, or other property as distinguished from monetary grants. Some organizations may also donate space or staff time as an in-kind contribution.

Matching Grant: A grant that is made to match funds provided by another donor. (See also Challenge Grant; Employee Matching Gift)

Operating Foundation: A 501(c)(3) organization classified by the IRS as a private foundation whose primary purpose is to conduct research, social welfare, or other programs determined by its governing body or establishment charter. Some grants may be made, but the sum is generally small relative to the funds used for the foundation's own programs. (See also 501(c)(3))

Operating Support Grant: A grant to cover the regular personnel, administrative, and other expenses of an existing program or project. (See also General Purpose Grant)

Payout Requirement: The minimum amount that private foundations are required to expend for charitable purposes (includes grants and, within certain limits, the administrative cost of making grants). In general, a private foundation must meet or exceed an annual payout requirement of five percent of the average market value of the foundation's assets.

Private Foundation: A nongovernmental, nonprofit organization with funds (usually from a single source, such as an individual, family, or corporation) and program managed by its own trustees or directors that was established to maintain or aid social, educational, religious or other charitable activities serving the common welfare, primarily through the making of grants. "Private foundation" also means an organization that is tax-exempt under code section 501(c)(3) and is classified by the IRS as a private foundation as defined in the code. The code definition usually, but not always, identifies a foundation with the characteristics first described. (See also 501(c)(3); Public Charity)

Program Amount: Funds that are expended to support a particular program administered internally by the foundation or corporate giving program.

Program Officer: A staff member of a foundation who reviews grant proposals and processes applications for the board of trustees. Only a small percentage of foundations have program officers.

Program-Related Investment (PRI): A loan or other investment (as distinguished from a grant) made by a foundation or corporate giving program to another organization for a project related to the grantmaker's stated charitable purpose and interests. Program-related investments are often made from a revolving fund; the foundation generally expects to receive its money back with interest or some other form of return at less than current market rates, and it then becomes available for further program-related investments.

Proposal: A written application, often with supporting documents, submitted to a foundation or corporate giving program in requesting a grant. Preferred procedures and formats vary. Consult published guidelines.

Public Charity: In general, an organization that is tax-exempt under code section 501(c)(3) and is classified by the IRS as a public charity and not a private foundation. Public charities generally derive their funding or support primarily from the general public in carrying out their social, educational, religious, or other charitable activities serving the common welfare. Some public charities engage in grantmaking activities, although most engage in direct service or other tax-exempt activities. Public charities are eligible for maximum income tax-deductible contributions from the public and are not subject to the same rules and restrictions as private foundations. Some are also referred to as "public foundations" or "publicly supported organizations" and may use the term "foundation" in their names. (See also 501(c)(3); Private Foundation)

Qualifying Distributions: Expenditures of private foundations used to satisfy the annual payout requirement. These can include grants, reasonable administrative expenses, set-asides, loans and program-related investments, and amounts paid to acquire assets used directly in carrying out exempt purposes.

Query Letter: A brief letter outlining an organization's activities and its request for funding sent to a foundation or corporation to determine whether it would be appropriate to submit a full grant proposal. Many grantmakers prefer to be contacted in this way before receiving a full proposal.

RFP: Request For Proposal. When the government issues a new contract or grant program, it sends out RFPs to agencies that might be qualified to participate. The RFP lists project specifications and application procedures. A few foundations occasionally use RFPs in specific fields, but most prefer to consider proposals that are initiated by applicants.

Seed Money: A grant or contribution used to start a new project or organization. Seed grants may cover salaries and other operating expenses of a new project.

Set-Asides: Funds set aside by a foundation for a specific purpose or project that are counted as qualifying distributions toward the foundation's annual payout requirement. Amounts for the project must be paid within five years of the first set-aside.

Special Purpose Foundation: A private foundation that focuses its grantmaking activities in one or a few special areas of interest. For example, a foundation may only award grants in the area of cancer research or child development. (See also General Purpose Foundation)

Technical Assistance: Operational or management assistance given to nonprofit organizations. It can include fundraising assistance, budgeting and financial planning, program planning, legal advice, marketing, and other aids to management. Assistance may be offered directly by a foundation or corporate staff member, or be offered in the form of a grant to pay for the services of an outside consultant. (See also In-Kind Contributions)

Trustee: A member of a governing board. A foundation's board of trustees meets to review grant proposals and make decisions. Often also referred to as a "director" or "board member."

RESOURCES OF THE FOUNDATION CENTER

The Foundation Center is a national service organization founded and supported by foundations to provide a single authoritative source of information on foundation and corporate giving. The Center's programs are designed to help grantseekers select those funders which may be most interested in their projects from the more than 40,000 active U.S. foundations. Among its primary activities toward this end are publishing reference books and a CD-ROM on foundation and corporate philanthropy and disseminating information on grantmaking, grantseeking, and related subjects through its site on the World Wide Web and a nationwide public service program.

Publications of the Foundation Center are the primary working tools of every serious grantseeker. They are also used by grantmakers, scholars, journalists, and legislators—in short, by anyone seeking any type of factual information on philanthropy. All private foundations and a significant number of corporate grantmakers actively engaged in grantmaking, regardless of size or geographic location, are included in one or more of the Center's publications. The publications are of three kinds: directories that describe specific funders, characterizing their program interests and providing fiscal and personnel data; grants indexes that list and classify by subject recent foundation and corporate awards; and guides, monographs, and bibliographies that introduce the reader to funding research, elements of proposal writing, and nonprofit management issues.

For those who wish to access information on grantmakers and their grants electronically, the Center issues FC Search: The Foundation Center's Database on CD-ROM containing the full universe of over 47,000 grantmakers and nearly 200,000 associated grants. In addition, the Center's award-winning site on the World Wide Web features a wide array of free information about the philanthropic community.

The Foundation Center's publications and CD-ROM may be ordered from the Foundation Center, 79 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10003-3076, or online at our World Wide Web site. For more information about any aspect of the Center's programs or for the name of the Center's library collection nearest you, call 1-800-424-9836, or visit our site on the World Wide Web: http://www.fdncenter.org.

GENERAL RESEARCH DIRECTORIES

THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY, 1999 Edition

The Foundation Directory has been widely known and respected in the field for more than 38 years. It includes the latest information on all foundations whose assets exceed $2 million or whose annual grants total $200,000 or more. The 1999 Edition includes over 10,000 of these foundations, over 2,000 of which are new to this edition. Directory foundations hold more than $318 billion in assets and award $14 billion in grants annually.

Each Directory entry contains precise information on application procedures, giving limitations, types of support awarded, the publications of each foundation, and foundation staff. In addition, each entry features such vital data as the grantmaker's giving interests, financial data, grant amounts, address, and telephone number. This edition includes close to 35,000 selected grants. The Foundation Center works closely with foundations to ensure the accuracy and timeliness of the information provided.

The Directory includes indexes by foundation name; subject areas of interest; names of donors, officers, and trustees; geographic location; international interests; types of support awarded; and grantmakers new to the volume. Also included are analyses of the foundation community by geography, asset and grant size, and the different foundation types.

THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY PART 2, 1999 Edition

Following in the tradition of The Foundation Directory, The Foundation Directory Part 2 brings you the same thorough coverage for the next largest set of foundations, those with assets from $1 million and less than $2 million or grant programs from $50,000 and less than $200,000. It includes Directory-level information on mid-sized foundations, an important group of grantmakers responsible for millions of dollars in funding annually. Essential data on over 5,700 foundations is included along with more than 18,100 recently awarded foundation grants, providing an excellent overview of the foundations' giving interests. Quick access to foundation entries is facilitated by seven indexes, including foundation name; subject areas of interest; names of donors, officers, and trustees; geographic location; international interests; types of support awarded; and grantmakers new to the volume.

THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY SUPPLEMENT

The Foundation Directory Supplement provides the latest-breaking information on Foundation Directory and Foundation Directory Part 2 grantmakers six months after those volumes are published. Each year, thousands of policy and staff changes occur at these foundations. Fundraisers need to know about these crucial changes as rapidly as possible, as they may affect the way fundraisers prepare their grant proposals. The Supplement ensures that users of the Directory and Directory Part 2 always have the latest addresses, contact names, policy statements, application guidelines, and financial data for the foundations they're approaching for funding.

GUIDE TO U.S. FOUNDATIONS, THEIR TRUSTEES, OFFICERS, AND DONORS, 1999 Edition

This powerful fundraising reference tool provides fundraisers with current, accurate information on over 46,000 private grantmaking foundations in the U.S. The two-volume set also includes a master list of the names of the people who establish, oversee, and manage those institutions. With access to this information, fundraisers can facilitate their funding research by discovering the philanthropic connections of current donors, board members, volunteers, and prominent families in their geographic area. Because it provides a comprehensive list of U.S. foundations and the people who govern them, the Guide to U.S. Foundations also helps fundraisers follow up on any giving leads they may uncover. Each entry includes asset and giving amounts as well as geographic limitations, allowing fundraisers to quickly determine whether or not to pursue a particular grant source.

The Guide to U.S. Foundations is the only source of published data on thousands of local foundations. (It includes more than 25,000 grantmakers not covered in other Foundation Center publications.) Each entry also tells you whether you can find more extensive information on the grantmaker in another Foundation Center reference work.

THE FOUNDATION 1000

Nonprofit fundraisers and other researchers have access to annually published, comprehensive reports on the 1,000 largest foundations in the country. The Foundation 1000 provides access to extensive and accurate information on this set of powerful funders. Foundation 1000 grantmakers hold over $168 billion in assets and each year award close to 200,000 grants worth $8 billion to nonprofit organizations nationwide.

The Foundation 1000 provides the most thorough analyses available of the 1,000 largest foundations and their extensive grant programs, including all the data fundraisers need most when applying for grants from these top-level foundations. Each multi-page foundation profile features a full foundation portrait, a detailed breakdown of the foundation's grant programs, and extensive lists of recently awarded foundation grants.

Five indexes give fundraisers the opportunity to target potential funders in a variety of ways: by subject field, type of support, geographic location, international giving, and the names of foundation officers, donors, and trustees.

FOUNDATIONS OF THE 1990s: A Directory of Newly Established Foundations, 1st Edition

Foundations of the 1990s presents you with a unique way to increase your prospect list. It is designed for fundraisers who want to capitalize on the 9,000+ independent, community, and corporate foundations that have incorporated as grantmaking institutions in the U.S. in or after 1990. The emergence of these new foundations signifies substantial long-term growth in the field of foundation giving. Indeed, in 1995, the number of grantmaking foundations exceeded 40,000 for the first time, nearly doubling since 1980. Foundations of the 1990s collects these new, important—and often relatively unknown—funders into one convenient source.

The interests of these newly established, cutting-edge foundations will be of great importance in the years to come. By examining the foundations included in this book, you can be among the first to submit grant proposals to these largely undiscovered funders. The typical foundation entry includes foundation name, address, contact name, foundation type, financial facts for determining giving potential, donor information, list of key officials and giving limitations. Many foundation entries feature more comprehensive descriptions, including purpose statement, fields of interest, types of support, application information and names of key personnel. Entries are organized by state and then alphabetically by foundation name. Six indexes help you target potential funders by names of donors, officers, and trustees; subject field; geographic area; preferred types of support; foundation name; and international giving.

NATIONAL DIRECTORY OF CORPORATE GIVING, 5th Edition

Each year, corporations donate billions of dollars to nonprofit organizations. To help fundraisers tap into this vital source of funding, the 5th Edition of the National Directory of Corporate Giving offers authoritative information on 2,895 corporate foundations and direct-giving programs.

Fundraisers who want access to current, accurate fundraising facts on corporate philanthropies will benefit from the full range of data in this volume. The National Directory of Corporate Giving features detailed portraits of 1,900+ corporate foundations plus an additional 990 direct-giving programs. Fundraisers will find essential information on these corporate grantmakers, including application information, key personnel, types of support generally awarded, giving limitations, financial data, and purpose and activities statements. Also included in the 5th Edition are over 10,000 selected grants. These grants give you the best indication of a grantmaker's funding priorities by identifying nonprofits it has already funded. The volume also provides data on the corporations that sponsor foundations and direct-giving programs—essential background information for corporate grant searches. Each entry gives the company's name and address, a listing of its types of business, its financial data (complete with Forbes and Fortune ratings), a listing of its subsidiaries, divisions, plants, and offices, and a charitable-giving statement.

The National Directory of Corporate Giving also features an extensive bibliography to guide you to further research on corporate funding. Seven essential indexes help you target funding prospects by geographic region; international giving; types of support; subject area; officers, donors, and trustees; types of business; and the names of the corporation, its foundation, and its direct-giving program.

CORPORATE FOUNDATION PROFILES, 10th Edition

This biennially updated volume includes comprehensive information on 195 of the largest corporate foundations in the U.S., grantmakers who each give at least $1.2 million annually. Each profile includes foundation giving interests, application guidelines, recently awarded grants, information on the sponsoring company, and many other essential fundraising facts. A section on financial data provides a summary of the size and grantmaking capacity of each foundation and contains a list of assets, gifts or contributions, grants paid, operating programs, expenditures, scholarships, and loans. A quick-scan appendix lists core financial data on some 1,000 additional corporate foundations, all of which give at least $50,000 in grants every year. Five indexes help grantseekers search for prospective funders by names of donors, officers, trustees, and staff; subject area; types of support; geographic region; and international giving.

GRANT DIRECTORIES

GRANT GUIDES

Designed for fundraisers who work within defined fields of nonprofit development, this series of guides lists actual foundation grants of $10,000 or more in 35 key areas of grantmaking.

Each title in the series affords immediate access to the names, addresses, and giving limitations of the foundations listed. The grant descriptions provide fundraisers with the grant recipient's name and location; the amount of the grant; the date the grant was authorized; and a description of the grant's intended use.

In addition, each Grant Guide includes three indexes, which help fundraisers target possible sources of funding by the type of organization generally funded by the grantmaker, the subject focus of the foundation's grants, and the geographic area in which the foundation has already funded projects.

Each Grant Guide also includes a concise overview of the foundation spending patterns within the specified field. The introduction uses a series of statistical tables to document such important findings as (1) the 25 top funders in your area of interest (by total dollar amount of grants); (2) the 15 largest grants reported; (3) the total dollar amount and number of grants awarded for specific types of support, recipient organization type, and population group; and (4) the total grant dollars received in each U.S. state and many foreign countries.

The Grant Guide series gives fundraisers the data they need to target foundations making grants in their field, to network with organizations that share their goals, and to tailor their grant applications to the specific concerns of grantmakers as expressed by the grants they have already made.

THE FOUNDATION GRANTS INDEX, 1999 Edition

A foundation's recently awarded grants offer the best indication of its future funding priorities. The all-new 1999 (27th) Edition of The Foundation Grants Index—the volume fundraisers have relied upon since 1970—is the most current and accurate source of information on recent grantmaker awards. The Grants Index has steadily expanded its coverage since the 1st Edition: it now covers the grantmaking programs of over 1,000 of the largest independent, corporate, and community foundations in the U.S. and includes more than 75,000 grant descriptions in all.

The new 1999 Edition of the Grants Index is designed for fast and easy grants-based research. Grant descriptions are divided into 28 broad subject areas such as health, higher education, and arts and culture. Within each of these broad fields, the grant descriptions are listed geographically by state and alphabetically by the name of the foundation, an arrangement that helps fund-raisers find prospective funders who share their program interests and fund projects within their geographic region.

INTERNATIONAL GRANTMAKING: A Report on U.S. Foundation Trends

This groundbreaking study maps the dimensions and patterns of international giving by U.S. foundations in the 1990s, revealing dynamic growth in overseas funding and a dramatic shift in priorities tied to the end of the Cold War. The study examines more than 12,000 international grants made by 500 U.S. foundations and constructs a detailed picture of who makes grants, where the dollars go, and what the grants support. Examples include programs that promote sustainable development and the growth of civil society, preserve the world's cultural heritage, and protect human rights.

The study also investigates the practice and challenges of international grantmaking, drawn from in-depth interviews with experienced funders. Up-to-date profiles of the international programs of 63 leading funders complete the portrait of U.S. giving trends. For a comparative view, the report features articles on the international activities of Japanese and European grantmakers. An extensive bibliography and summary of the regulatory framework for crossborder grants make this an essential resource for grantmakers, grantseekers, researchers, and NGOs both inside and outside the U.S. Prepared in cooperation with the Council on Foundations.

PROGRAM-RELATED INVESTMENTS: A GUIDE TO FUNDERS AND TRENDS

While most foundations make grants to support their programmatic interests, some funders have developed an alternative financing approach for supplying capital to the nonprofit sector known as program-related investing. This type of investment has been used to support community revitalization, low-income housing, microenterprise development, historic preservation, human services, and more.

Program-Related Investments: A Guide to Funders and Trends offers a wealth of information on this little-understood field, including perspectives from providers and recipients; essays by experts in the field; strategies for success; and a directory of over 100 leading PRI providers. A truly comprehensive report, Program Related Investments gathers all the information you need to understand the ins and outs of charitable investing.

MEMBERSHIP PROGRAM

ASSOCIATES PROGRAM
Direct Line to Fundraising Information

The Associates Program puts important facts and figures on your desk through a toll-free telephone reference service, helping you to:

- identify potential sources of foundation funding for your organization; and
- gather important information to use in targeting and presenting your proposals effectively.

Your annual membership in the Associates Program gives you vital information on a timely basis, saving you hundreds of hours of research time.

- Membership in the Associates Program entitles you to important funding information, including information from:
  - —foundation and corporate annual reports, brochures, press releases, grants lists, and other announcements
  - —IRS 990-PF information returns for 49,000+ active grantmaking U.S. foundations—often the only source of information on small foundations
  - —books and periodicals on the grantmaking field, including regulation and nonprofit management
- The Associates Program places this vital information at your fingertips via a toll-free telephone number. The annual fee of $495 for the Associates Program entitles you to ten toll-free telephone reference calls per month. Additional calls can be made at the rate of $30 per ten calls.

- Membership in the Associates Program allows you to request custom searches of the Foundation Center's computerized databases, which contain information on close to 50,000 U.S. foundations and corporate givers. There is an additional cost for this service.
- Associates Program members may request photocopies of key documents. Important information from 990-PFs, annual reports, application guidelines, and other resources can be copied and either mailed or faxed to your office. The fee for this service, available only to Associate Members, is $2.00 for the first page of material and $1.00 for each additional page. Fax service is available at an additional charge.
- All Associates Program members receive the Associates Program quarterly newsletter, which provides news and information about new foundations, changes in boards of directors, new programs, and publications from both the Foundation Center and other publishers in the field.

Thousands of professional fundraisers find it extremely cost-effective to rely on the Center's Associates Program. Put our staff of experts to work for your fundraising program. For more information call 1-800-424-9836, or visit our World Wide Web site at http://www.fdncenter.org.

ELECTRONIC RESOURCES

FC Search: The Foundation Center's Database on CD-ROM, Version 3.0

The Foundation Center's comprehensive database of grantmakers and their associated grants may now be accessed in a fully searchable CD-ROM format. FC Search contains the Center's entire universe of close to 50,000 grantmaker records, including all known active foundations and corporate giving programs in the United States. It also includes nearly 200,000 newly reported grants from the largest foundations and the names of approximately 200,000 trustees, officers, and donors which can be quickly linked to their foundation affiliations. Users can also link from FC Search to the Web sites of hundreds of grantmakers.

Grantseekers and other researchers may select multiple criteria and create customized prospect lists which can be printed or saved. Basic or Advanced search modes and special search options enable users to make searches as broad or as specific as required. Up to 21 different criteria may be selected:

- grantmaker name
- grantmaker type
- grantmaker city
- grantmaker state
- geographic focus
- fields of interest
- types of support
- total assets
- total giving
- trustees, officers, and donors
- establishment date
- corporate name
- corporate location
- recipient name
- recipient city
- recipient state
- recipient type
- subject
- grant amount
- year grant authorized
- text search field

FC Search is a sophisticated fundraising research tool, but it is also user-friendly. It has been developed with both the novice and experienced researcher in mind. Assistance is available through Online Help, a User Manual that accompanies FC Search, as well as through a free User Hotline.

Foundation Center's World Wide Web site (http://www.fdncenter.org)

Your gateway to philanthropy on the Web

The Foundation Center's World Wide Web site (http://www.fdncenter.org) is fast becoming the premier online source of fundraising information. Updated and expanded on an almost-daily basis, the Center's site provides grantseekers, grantmakers, researchers, journalists, and the general public with easy access to a range of valuable resources, among them:

- A Grantmaker Information directory with links to more than 600 individual grantmaker sites—the most comprehensive and useful directory of its kind on the Internet.
- Philanthropy News Digest, a weekly compendium of philanthropy-related articles abstracted from major print and online media outlets. Also available as a listserv.
- The Literature of the Nonprofit Sector Online, a searchable bibliographical database with 16,200+ entries of works in the field of philanthropy, over 9,700 of which are abstracted.
- An Online Library, with comprehensive answers to FAQs, an online librarian to field questions about grantseeking and the Foundation Center, annotated links to useful nonprofit resources, and online orientations to the grantseeking process—one for individual grantseekers, the other for fundraisers at nonprofit organizations.
- Our popular Proposal Writing Short Course, an extensive glossary, valuable tips on the fundraising process, and downloadable common grant application forms.
- Information about Center-sponsored orientations, training programs, and seminars.
- The locations of our 200+ Cooperating Collections nationwide, and the activities and resources at our five main libraries.
- Foundation Finder, our new free foundation look-up tool that provides a foundation's full name, address, telephone number, and contact person. Records also include brief background data, such as type of foundation, assets, total giving, and EIN.

All this and more is available at our Web site. The Center's publications and CD-ROM may also be ordered via the site's downloadable or interactive order forms.

FC FAX! Document Delivery Service (212) 807-2577

FC FAX! is a free service, available 24 hours a day to provide the latest information on publications, electronic resources, programs, and services. Call to request a complete menu of Foundation Center documents that can be forwarded to your fax machine. FC FAX! includes Profiles of the Top U.S Foundations, in-depth individual profiles of the largest foundations included in The Foundation 1000. Profiles are available at a cost of only $5.00 each, and can be ordered using Visa, MasterCard, or American Express (limit five profiles per phone call). Call for a free index of foundations.

FOUNDATION CENTER COOPERATING COLLECTIONS — FREE FUNDING INFORMATION CENTERS

The Foundation Center is an independent national service organization established by foundations to provide an authoritative source of information on foundation and corporate giving. The New York, Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Cleveland, and San Francisco reference collections operated by the Foundation Center offer a wide variety of services and comprehensive collections of information on foundations and grants. Cooperating Collections are libraries, community foundations, and other nonprofit agencies that provide a core collection of Foundation Center publications and a variety of supplementary materials and services in areas useful to grantseekers. The core collection consists of:

- THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY 1 AND 2, AND SUPPLEMENT
- THE FOUNDATION 1000
- FOUNDATION FUNDAMENTALS
- FOUNDATION GIVING
- THE FOUNDATION GRANTS INDEX
- THE FOUNDATION GRANTS INDEX QUARTERLY
- FOUNDATION GRANTS TO INDIVIDUALS
- GUIDE TO U.S. FOUNDATIONS, THEIR TRUSTEES, OFFICERS, AND DONORS
- THE FOUNDATION CENTER'S GUIDE TO GRANTSEEKING ON THE WEB
- THE FOUNDATION CENTER'S GUIDE TO PROPOSAL WRITING
- NATIONAL DIRECTORY OF CORPORATE GIVING
- NATIONAL DIRECTORY OF GRANTMAKING PUBLIC CHARITIES
- NATIONAL GUIDE TO FUNDING IN. . . . (SERIES)
- USER-FRIENDLY GUIDE

All five Center libraries have FC Search: The Foundation Center's Database on CD-ROM available for patron use, and most Cooperating Collections have it as well, as noted by the symbol (✚). Also, many of the network members make available for public use sets of private foundation information returns (IRS Form 990-PF) for their state and/or neighboring states noted by the symbol (✱). A complete set of U.S. foundation returns can be found at the New York and Washington, D.C., offices of the Foundation Center. The Atlanta, Cleveland, and San Francisco offices contain IRS Form 990-PF returns for the southeastern, midwestern, and western states, respectively. Because the collections vary in their hours, materials, and services, it is recommended that you call the collection in advance. To check on new locations or current holdings, call toll-free 1-800-424-9836, or visit our Web site at http://fdncenter.org/collections/index.html.

Participants in the Foundation Center's Cooperating Collections network are libraries or nonprofit information centers that provide fundraising information and other funding-related technical assistance in their communities. Cooperating Collections agree to provide free public access to a basic collection of Foundation Center publications during a regular schedule of hours, offering free funding research guidance to all visitors. Many also provide a variety of services for local nonprofit organizations, using staff or volunteers to prepare special materials, organize workshops, or conduct orientations.

The Foundation Center welcomes inquiries from libraries or information centers in the U.S. interested in providing this type of public information service. If you are interested in establishing a funding information library for the use of nonprofit organizations in your area or in learning more about the program, please contact a coordinator of Cooperating Collections: Erika Wittlieb, The Foundation Center, 79 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10003 (e-mail: eaw@fdncenter.org) or Janet Camarena, The Foundation Center, 312 Sutter Street, Suite 312, San Francisco, CA 94108 (e-mail: jfc@fdncenter.org).
